

Help your students reach their target test scores with The Princeton Review's Test Prep Programs

Open doors to greater opportunities—one test at a time. Student performance on college entrance exams can have a profound impact on students' futures, affecting not only which colleges they can attend, but also whether they will have the means to pay for higher education. Your school or district can provide the best opportunities for success by offering students test prep from The Princeton Review—programs proven to build student confidence, raise scores and lower test anxiety. We offer several course configurations and can customize a program to best fit your needs.

SAT®/PSAT® & ACT® Prep Services

Every test prep course from The Princeton Review varies in length of instruction and depth of material covered. Choose to have our Master Certified Teachers deliver your courses in person* or LiveOnline™, or opt to have us train your teaching staff for a more cost-effective and sustainable program. Each course includes:

- Class Instruction
- Course Materials
- Proctored Tests
- Administrator Dashboard
- Practice Drills
- My Campus Student Portal

101

Prepare your students for high-stakes tests by introducing them to global test-taking strategies. With our 101 programs, we teach students what to expect and how to tackle the test through time management and best-practice approaches to tough questions.

Fundamentals

Introduce both content and strategy to raise student confidence and improve base test scores. Take your students' test prep to the next level with scheduled practice drills and multiple proctored practice tests.

Ultimate

Intensify test preparation with our Ultimate level instruction and guided practice. Take students deep into the details of content and strategy to provide significant, proven score improvement.

Semester-Long

Prioritize their futures by committing to a full semester of test preparation as part of students' regular course schedule. Curriculum includes best-fit college selection using The Princeton Review's expansive college research database.

Self-Paced

Encourage independent study, responsibility and accountability to better acquaint students with college-level expectations—all while preparing them for the tests. Self-Paced courses provide 365 days of 24/7 access to lessons, drills and practice tests, giving students more time to fully absorb the content and strategies required to reach their target scores.

My Campus Student Portal

Included in all test prep courses, My Campus personalizes the learning experience by pinpointing areas of focus for each student based on performance and by assigning appropriate lessons and practice drills to best improve their scores. Our dynamic study planner, complete with task reminders, enhances efficiency to ensure that students get the most out of their prep time.

“Our students have raised their scores and their confidence. The Princeton Review helped us achieve this goal, and they also decreased our admin work around this curriculum.” —CA School Administrator

The Princeton Review's Test Prep Programs

Professional Development Teacher Training

Implement a long-term test preparation program in your school or district that is highly effective, cost efficient and flexible in timing. The Princeton Review will train your staff to deliver our courses and can provide ongoing support for years to come. Utilizing your staff to deliver our courses provides more flexibility in when and to whom you provide instruction.

Schools or districts that choose The Princeton Review Professional Development Teacher Training program receive access to our Administrator Dashboard, My Campus Student Portal, course materials, and a dedicated instructor for support, and may opt to offer refresher trainings when test changes occur, or to train new staff.

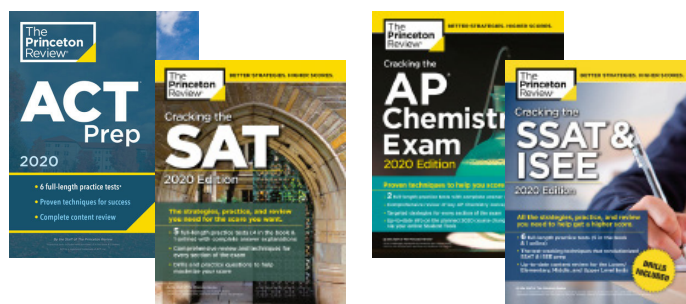

Advanced Placement (AP®) Exam Prep

Enhance your AP courses with LiveOnline™ exam preparation. Our instructors will provide the test prep so that your AP teachers can enjoy focusing on course content throughout the year. In a six-hour course review, our AP instructors will revisit the most heavily tested content that students need to know in order to maximize their score—and their opportunity for college credit. Courses include:

- AP English Language
- AP English Literature
- AP U.S. Government
- AP European History
- AP U.S. History
- AP World History
- AP Calculus AB
- AP Statistics
- AP Biology
- AP Physics
- AP Chemistry

Full Line of Books

You can order test prep books for your students through The Princeton Review to equip your classroom or school library with the most up-to-date college admissions, test information, and test prep materials available anywhere.

SAT® or ACT®: Why not both?

At The Princeton Review, we believe in matching students with the right test for their goals and abilities. But the differences between the SAT and ACT are more complex than just the scoring scale or the inclusion of a science section—and subtle differences can affect a student's performance.

To learn the differences, gain mastery, and open a path to greater opportunities, students are encouraged to prepare for both of these tests. By offering both SAT and ACT test prep for your students, you will help them to identify their best test choice and enable them to capitalize on more opportunities.

The Princeton Review also offers test prep courses for ISEE®, TOEFL®, SSAT®, and TSI®. Contact us to learn more.

College Readiness with The Princeton Review

Getting into college isn't just about high test scores. It also takes a great GPA, well-written application essays, knowledge of the admissions process, and confidence. The Princeton Review begins working with students in as early as the fourth grade to help them develop a "can-do" attitude and to create a college-going mindset by offering several types of courses and support. We'll help you build a college-readiness program that best fits your student community.
